Article 135._

A) After having resolved all complaints completely and after receiving all results of the election, including the results of the re-election, if any, the National Election Committee shall officially announce the results of the election and allocate the number of seats for each political party per each constituency based on the number of valid votes received by each political party.

Allocation of seats by the Capital and province shall be made in accordance with the highest average formula based on the number of seats and the result of the election in the Capital and province by applying the steps described below.

Step 1: Determine the quota required for a political party to gain 1 (one) seat, by dividing the total of the valid votes in the capital/province by the total number of seats allocated to the capital/province under the following formula; and it shall be applied separately for each individual capital/province:

$$Q = \frac{V}{S}$$

Where:

$Q$  = Represents the quota, disregarding the remainder

$V$  = Represents the total number of the valid votes received by all political parties running in the Election in the capital/province;

$S$  = Represents the total number of seats allocated to each Provincial/Capital constituency.

Step 2: Determine the preliminary number of seat(s) that each political party obtained in the capital/province.

The following formula shall be applied separately for each individual political party running in the Election in the capital/province:

$$N = \frac{V}{Q}$$

Where:

$N$  = Quotient, disregarding the remainder, represents the number of seat(s) that each political party is entitled to receive prior to any necessary calculation indicated in step 3.

$V$  = Represents the number of the valid votes received by each political party in the capital/province;

$Q$  = Represents quota determined in step 1.

After the calculation of seats in step 2 for all political parties running in the Election in the capital/province is done, and if there is no seat left for further allocation; therefore, the number of seats allocated is considered as final.

In case of having the remaining seat(s) after allocating for all political parties running in the election in the capital/province, the remaining seat(s) shall be allocated in accordance with formula set out in step 3.

Step 3: the remaining seat(s) shall be allocated to each qualified political party in the capital/province by a highest average. The following formula shall be applied separately for each political party running in the Election in the capital/province:

$$H = \frac{V}{N + 1}$$

Where:

$H$  = Represents the highest average;

$V$  = Represents the number of valid votes received by a political party;

$N$  = Represents the number of seat(s) allocated to a political party.

In case there is 1 (one) remaining seat to be allocated, after applying the formula in step 3 for all qualified political parties, that seat shall be allocated to the political party that has gained the highest average

In case there is more than 01 (one) seat left to be allocated, the formula in Step 3 shall be applied and 01 (one) seat left shall be apportioned to the political party that has gained the highest average. Then, this formula shall be applied again by increasing the value of  $N$  to  $(N + 1)$  for the political party that received one seat during the first application of the formula. Thus, 01 (one) seat will be allocated to the political party that gained the highest average resulted from the second application of this formula. In case of remaining seat, repeat the same calculation by allocated 01 (one) seat at a time successively until there is no seat left.

B) The declaration of the elected Members for the National Assembly shall be made in accordance with the party's list of candidates and in a descending order as stipulated in Article 28 of this law.

C) If, an elected candidate in the party's candidate list is deceased, resigns or loses his/her parliamentary candidacy, the next candidate listed on the same party's candidate list shall be declared to be elected as a Member of the National Assembly of the concerned party.

D) If a party's list of candidates does not have enough candidates due to reasons as mentioned in item (C) of this Article, the National Election Committee shall make a request in writing to the concerned party to provide more names of candidates to be added to its own party's list within 14 (fourteen) days after the receipt of the request.

The modality and approval of the added candidates to the list shall be based on the provisions stipulated in Article 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 32, 33, 34, 35 and Article 36 of this Law.

In case any political party fails to meet such request within the time frame mentioned above or is unable to fulfil the requirements needed for completing the vacant seat(s), it is considered that the concerned political party has abandoned the vacant seat(s).

E) In case a political party received 01 (one) seat or more in the National Assembly, but this party declares to abandon its seat(s) in the National Assembly or it is deleted from the political party list in accordance with the Law on the Political Party, the party's candidate list and the candidates on such party's list that has been declared elected, is no longer valid or qualified.

In such a case, the National Election Committee shall allocate the vacant seat within 07 (seven) days to other political parties that have received seat(s) in the same capital/province, excluding the political party that has abandoned its seat(s), by applying the following steps:

Step 1: Determine the quota required for a political party to gain 01 (one) seat by using the formula below:

$$Q' = \frac{V'}{S'}$$

Where:

$Q'$  = Represents the quota disregarding the remainder;

$V'$  = Represents the total number of valid votes received by all political parties receiving the seat(s) in the capital/province, deducted the valid votes of the political party that has abandoned its seat(s) in the capital/province;

$S'$  = Represents the number of the abandoned seat(s) in the capital/province.

Step 2: Determine the preliminary number of seat(s) that each political party could gain by applying the following formula:

$$N' = \frac{V}{Q'}$$

Where:

$N'$  = Represents the number of seat(s) that each political party in the capital/province to receive prior to any necessary calculation made in step 3.

$V$  = Represents the total number of valid votes cast for each political party in the capital/province;

$Q'$  = Represents the quota determined in step 1.

After the allocation of seats in step 2 is made and there are no more seats to be further allocated, the number of seat(s) that all political parties attained in the capital/province, except the political party that has abandoned its seat(s) in the capital/province, shall be finalized as determined in this step.

After step 2 has achieved and there are still seat (s) left for further allocation, the remaining seats shall be apportioned as indicated in step 3.

Step 3: The remaining seat(s) shall be allocated based on the highest average by using the following formula:

$$H' = \frac{V}{N' + 1}$$

Where:

$H'$  = Represents the highest average;

$V$  = Represents the total number of valid votes received by each political party in the capital/province;

$N'$  = Represents the number of seat(s) a political party gains.

The method outlined in item (A) in paragraph 9 (nine) and paragraph 10 (ten) of this article shall be applied for the calculation in step 3 and the subsequent calculation.

F) After the calculation using the formula mentioned above, if there are 02 (two) or more political parties having the same highest average making it unable to allocate the remaining seat to any political parties, that seat shall be allocated to the political party receiving the highest number of valid votes. In case the political parties received the same number of the valid votes, the remaining seat shall be allocated based on drawing lots determined by the Regulations and Procedures of the National Election Committee.

G) In case a political party receives 01 (one) or more additional seats, but it has fewer candidates than the seats, the procedures stated in item (D) of this article shall be applied.

H) Based on the result of the election as stated in item (A) of this article, the National Election Committee may announce the result of the Election of each constituency consecutively.

I) Prior to the announcement of the official result of the election, the National Election Committee shall report to all parties' representatives running for the election the number of the printed ballot papers, the number of the used ballots and the number of the remaining ballots.

Article 136.

The period allowed for filing and deciding on the complaints and appeals as stipulated in Chapter 4, Chapter 6 and Chapter 8 of this Law shall not include the official public holidays.

Article 137._

During the polling, ballot counting and announcement of the election results, local non-governmental organizations or associations and international associations or organizations performing works in the Kingdom of Cambodia or foreigners shall be neutral and impartial pursuant to the provisions mentioned in article 84 of this law.

The provision of paragraph 1 (one) above shall not obstruct the exercise of freedom of expression in accordance with the law in force.

CHAPTER 9

After the election process conducted in a free and fair manner in accordance with the Cambodian Constitution, the Law on Organization and Functioning of the Constitutional Council, the Law on Organization and Functioning of the National Election Committee and the Law on the Election of Members of National Assembly and after the announcement of the official election results by the National Election Committee, any party winning one or more seats in the National Assembly shall be considered to have abandoned their seats in one of the following cases:

- That party boycotts the first sitting of the National Assembly as convened by the King.
- That party boycotts and refuses to participate in the National Assembly's meeting to announce the validity of its members' mandate.

- That party boycotts and refuses to participate in the sworn-in ceremony to take the office

In the above-mentioned cases, the candidate list and candidate of such political party that is announced to have been elected is invalid and not qualified anymore.

The National Assembly shall give notice to the National Election Committee immediately or within 24 (twenty-four) hours. The National Election Committee shall allocate the vacant seat within 72 (seventy-two) hours upon receipt of notice from the National Assembly to other party that registered their candidates running for the election in the same Capital and province, excluding the party that has lost its seats as mentioned in paragraph 1 (one) above, based on the following steps:

Step 1: Determine the quota required for a political party to gain 01 (one) seat by using the formula below:

$$Q' = \frac{V'}{S'}$$

Where:

$Q'$  = Represents the quota disregarding the remainder

$V'$  = Represents the total number of valid votes voted for other political parties that have registered the candidate list running for the election in the capital/province, deducted the valid votes of the political party that has abandoned its seat(s) in the capital/province;

$S'$  = Represents the number of the abandoned seat(s) in the capital/province.

Step 2: Determine the preliminary number of seat(s) that each political party gains by applying the following formula:

$$N' = \frac{V}{Q'}$$

Where:

$N'$  = Represents the number of seat(s) that each political party in the capital/province gains prior to any necessary calculation made in step 3.

$V$  = Represents the total number of valid votes casted for each political party in the capital/province;

$Q'$  = Represents the quota determined in step 1

After the calculation in step 2 is made, in case there are no more seats to be further allocated, the number of seat(s) that all political parties gained in the capital/province, except the political party that has abandoned its seat(s) in the capital/province shall be finalized as determined in this step.

In case the calculation step 2 has been done, but there are still seat(s) left to be further allocated, the remaining seat(s) shall be allocated as indicated in step 3.

Step 3: The remaining seat(s) shall be allocated based on the highest average by using the following formula:

$$H' = \frac{V}{N' + 1}$$

Where:

$H'$  = Represents the highest average;

$V$  = Represents the total number of valid votes casted for each political party in the capital/province;

$N'$  = Represents the number of seats allocated to a political party.

In case there is 1 (one) remaining seat to be allocated, after the calculation using the formula mentioned in Step 3 above for all qualified political parties that seat shall be allocated to the political party gaining the highest average.

In case there is more than 01 (one) seat left to be allocated, apply the formula in step 3 and the 01 (one) seat shall be allocated to the political party with the highest average.

Then, this formula shall be applied again by increasing the value of  $N$  to  $(N+1)$  for the political party that gains 1 (one) seat during the first application of the formula. Thus, 01 (one) seat will be allocated to the political party that gains the highest average resulted from the second application of this formula. If there are still more seat(s) left to be allocated repeat the same calculation of allocating 01 (one) seat at a time successively until there is no seat left.

In applying the formula above, if two or more political parties receive equal results that cannot be determined to allocate the remaining seats to any political party, the item (F) of Article 135 of this law shall be applied.

In case a political party's candidate list does not have adequate candidates, the National Election Committee shall give a written notice to that party to add their candidates within 48 (forty-eight) hours upon receipt of such notice.

In the event that a political party fails to meet the above-mentioned timeframe that party shall be considered to have abandoned its seat(s) as vacant.
